City planners okay plans for new 'Cheaper!' store in Southport area

■ Southport homeowners' group promises to challenge city's decision -- if city council doesn't appeal the approval first

By Steve Marschke

In a two-part decision last Thursday, the West Sacramento Planning Commission gave a green light to the construction of a "Cheaper!" store in Southport. But the leader of the Southport Homeowners Association said Monday his group plans to appeal that decision to the city council.

"We are planning to appeal," said Dan Amegin, president of the association. "There remain some significant questions as to the validity of the traffic study they did. I don't think enough attention to detail was done to do a complete analysis."

One of the two issues on the table Thursday was a staff determination that the new 8,000 square foot store would not create more car trips across the already-overtaxed Jefferson Blvd. bridge. Officials of The Customer Company have argued that the store will primarily serve residents of Southport (the city's 7,000-acre southern half), saving them a trip north across the bridge. Providing Southport with a mid-sized store (near the smaller Shirley's Market & Deli location) will thus prevent traffic across the bridge.

Dan Amegin

The company earlier provided a traffic report in support of this, but public protest helped shelve this study. A second traffic study was then commissioned by the city but paid for by The Customer Company, and this was the report presented to the planning commission last week.

It said that about 60 percent of the new store's customers would come from the immediate area, and about 40 percent would come across the bridge from northern West Sacramento, resulting in an overall drop of one percent in the number of cars using the bridge daily.

"They had compared this store with other convenience stores of about 2,000 to 3,000

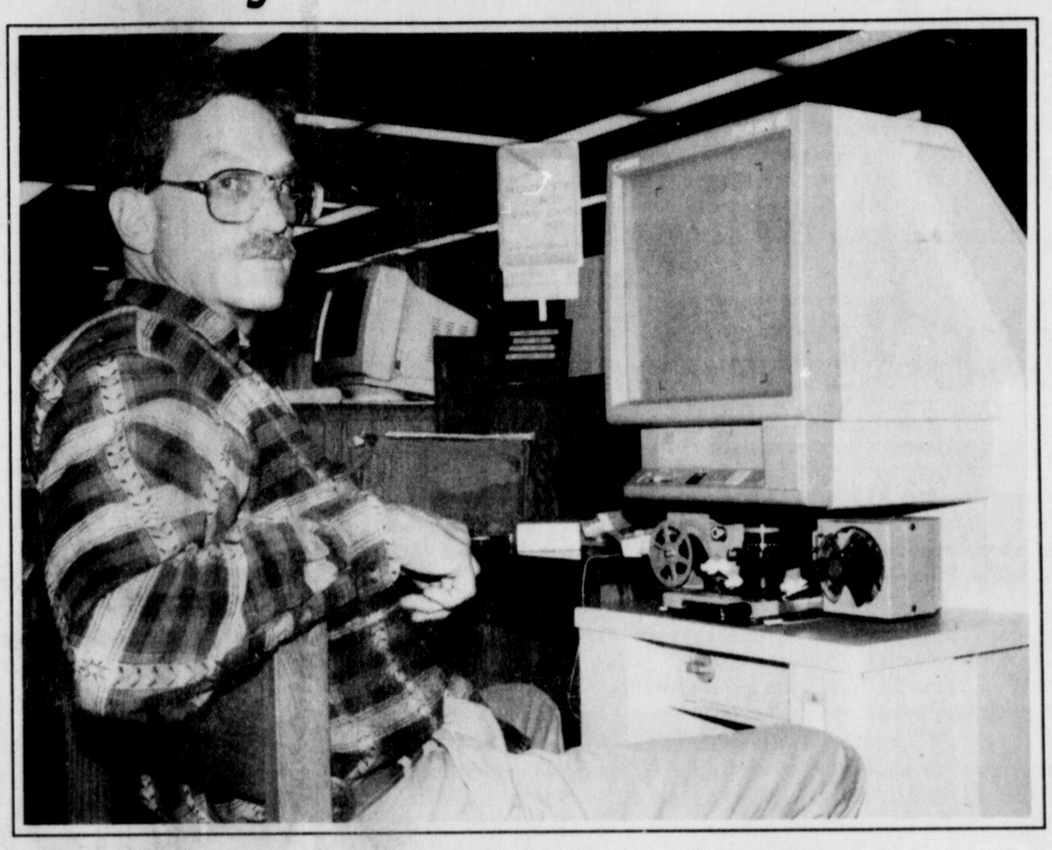
Library has new microfilm reader



Librarian Jay Johnstone with the Turner Branch's new microfilm machine.

Jay Johnstone, librarian at West Sacramento's Turner Branch library, has announced that the library's new microfilm reader is ready to go, and available to patrons.

The first item to be available on microfilm at the library is the first 30 years of the News-Ledger. The library has nearly every issue ranging from the News-Ledger's introductory issue in August, 1964 to June of this year.

"We had a couple in here last week planning an anniversary party for their parents," said Johnstone. "They came in here and copied off the information on their parents' wedding from the newspaper."

The machine has a copier attached. For ten cents, customers can make a copy of a newspaper page. Right now, the copies are available in "negative" form, where white and black are reversed, but the library has acquired a cartridge to copy normally.

The machine (which would have cost about $3,000 for the library to purchase new) was donated by Louise Ball after the death of her husband and the dissolution of his business, Ball and Associates. The microfilm machine belonged to that company and Chamber of Commerce director Steve Roberts suggested she donate it to the library.

The microfilming of the News-Ledger was paid for and organized by the East Yolo Friends of the Library.

The project was done in memory of Julius Feher, who died in 1988. Feher -- who started his first West Sacramento newspaper when he was a boy -- began the News-Ledger with partner Michael Garten in 1964. After his death, the newspaper was continued by Garten, who is still the owner.

The News-Ledger is West Sacramento's only locally-owned, independent newspaper.

The Turner Library is located on Merkley Avenue.

Public works director said to be hostile towards whistleblowers

■ Work environment at sewage treatment plant still oppressive, says one public works employee

By Steve Marschke

Following a meeting in which state officials criticized West Sacramento for failing to solve the problems at its sewage plant, the city's public works director allegedly blamed some of the plant's troubles on the three whistleblowers, calling them "the three culprits," said one public works department worker.

The remark was allegedly made at a staff meeting by director Larry Gossett, who recently announced his planned resignation from the post in March, 1995. Gossett has not returned recent phone calls from the News-Ledger, and could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

The worker asked that not to be identified for fear of job retaliation. The employee remains on duty within the department, and is not one of the three whistleblowers.

"These guys like to fire people who shoot off their mouths like I do," the worker said.

The employee added that although the temporary plant superintendent now on duty "is a nice guy,. . . there is still pressure on the employees. I heard Gossett's continuing until he leaves at the end of March. To me, Gossett is still probably 90 percent of the problem. These people don't understand that when you work at a wastewater treatment plant, or at a water plant, you work straight for the public."

The city has been fined over $300,000 during the last year and a half for sewage violations. Allegations of problems in the procedures at the plant first became public in May, 1993, when the News-Ledger published interviews with plant workers who unanimously described faulty testing protocol at the plant. Investigations by state and federal agencies also took place.

No criminal prosecution was recommended, although regulators found numerous flaws in the operations at the plant.

Gossett, along with city manager Joe Goeden, the City of West Sacramento, and former plant superintendent Dale Klever (who resigned last month) have been named in a lawsuit by whistleblowers Jerry Prosser, John Parent and Tony Sterling in a lawsuit by the three. The three maintain that the city officials "wrongly retaliated" for their whistleblowing activities, and ask for unspecified damages. They allege harassment, abuse, job isolation, and life-threatening remarks.

Prosser and Sterling are on stress leave from the city. Parent, at the city's request, has accepted early retirement following an injury.

The employee who quoted Gossett's "culprit" remark also has required treatment for job-related stress, the employee said.

Other remarks attributed to Gossett during recent months by public works employees include a comment that Gossett knew who the whistleblowers were and had "a long memory for such things," and the prediction to his staff that if the whistleblowers continued publicizing problems, the treatment plant might be turned over to others and all the present employees could be "out of jobs because of the whistleblowers."

Mayor Cindy Tuttle said she could not comment on the alleged "culprit" remark because she had no way of knowing if it was true, but that it was "obviously not" an appropriate way of referring to city employees who exercised their first amendment rights.

"I just have to point to the city council's policy relevant to the whole picture," she said. "Our goals are to fix and find the problems, provide full disclosure, and provide due process for all employees. I think the third one is the most important of all."

"We've put a million dollars into (fixing) the sewage treatment plant," added Tuttle." We've hired one of the best environmental consulting firms in the country and we've gone 20-something days without a sewage violation."

Port land may become habitat preserve

By Steve Marschke

Port of Sacramento officials are negotiating with the Army Corps of Engineers and others for the possible set-aside of about 70 acres of Port land as an environmental "mitigation" for some of the Corps of Engineers levee work in the West Sacramento.

"The Corps is working on a levee project in West Sacramento," said Port Director Michael Vernon. "It is working with a couple of the local reclamation districts and the city of West Sacramento, upgrading the area from 100 year flood protection to 300 year flood protection."

A 100-year flood protection is a measure of flood safety which means that an area is protected, at least statistically, from any floods likely to occur in a given 100 year period. 300-year flood protection means that an area is safe from all flooding but that so severe that it only occurs around once every 300 years.

A side effect of the levee work is some environmental damage, which the Corps will have to "mitigate" by arranging to set aside similar habitat elsewhere in the vicinity.

"As part of the project in once section, the work they need to do will have environmental impacts. The need approximately 70 acres of land they can develop some mitigation with," said Vernon.

The port director added that he did not know which specific types of habitat or species will need protection, or which parts of the Port's acreage might be most appropriate as mitigation. The Port is located near the middle of West Sacramento, but the Port district owns land reaching along the deep water shipping channel many miles.

City to local woman: get rid of 37 of your cats

A Poplar Avenue woman has been ordered to get rid of most of her 40 cats after neighbors complained of excess odor from the house.

Zoning laws allow the possession of up to four cats in the house, said Alfred Silva of the West Sacramento Community Development Dept.

"The cats are healthy and well taken care of, but anytime you have that many cats, you're going to have an odor," said Silva.

The woman, Kathryn Nelson, has already found homes for half the cats, and is very selective about the quality of the new owners, said Silva. At a city hearing Monday, she was given until Jan. 30 to find homes for the remaining 16-or-so necessary to whittle her menagerie down to four.

Driver may be charged in Southport accident

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento police have recommended prosecution of James LeRoy Smith, the driver of a pickup truck involved in a three-fatality accident in Southport Sept. 22. If the Yolo County District Attorney concurs, Smith will be charged with three counts of vehicular manslaughter.

The night-time accident occurred when Smith's pickup apparently crossed Jefferson Blvd. on Linden Rd. in violation of a red light, said police lieutenant Ron Moore, and struck a pickup truck travelling on Jefferson. Police believe Smith was guilty of gross negligence for several reasons, said Moore.

Further details were unavailable at press time.

Killed in the crash were Timothy Crumrine, 19, who had been a passenger in Smith's vehicle; and Sandra and Robert William North, both in their 40s.

Residents and friends of those involved erected a temporary shrine of photographs and poems on the lawn where the Norths' pickup truck came to rest near the Touchstone condominium complex. The accident hospitalized Smith and six other people.

How to manage your debts and rebuild your credit

(Daryl Fisher will be back next week)

From Martha Lewis
Personal Financial Planner
IDS Financial Services, Inc.

If you're experiencing a monetary squeeze as a result of a job loss coupled with continuing financial obligations, you may have built up major credit card debts or even may have declared bankruptcy.

While your situation may be pretty grim, it's not hopeless. You just need to get as much out of every dollar as possible. Start by thinking small, rather than big. A small increase in savings or a small decrease in spending can make a difference over time -- and focusing on smaller amounts can keep you from feeling overwhelmed.

Here are some steps you can take to get back on your financial feet again:

1. Set up a budget. Tally your expected earnings for the year and break them out on a monthly basis. Then list out monthly expenses: groceries, mortgage or rent money, car or other loan, insurance, medical expenses, school, clothing, incidentals. Evaluate how your money is being spent. Are you using more for clothing, activities or services than might be justified? Do you eat out a lot? Are you paying for more auto insurance coverage than you need? You might be surprised at how much you are spending on discretionary items. Cutting back here is the first step in freeing up more money to pay off debts or save for the long term.

2. Pay off your debts. If you can't make the minimum monthly payments on credit card balances, contact your creditors to arrange a monthly payment schedule that you can handle. Pay off the account with the highest interest rate first while making minimum payments to other account. Continue on in this fashion until all your credit card balances are paid and then force yourself to spend more carefully. Don't buy anything unless you can pay for it in cash. Cut down in number, or eliminate credit cards.

3. Rebuild your credit. First, get a checking account -- one that has free checking or a low minimum balance -- and open a savings account. Set a realistic goal for saving on a regular basis. Ideally, experts say, this amount saved should be 10 percent of each paycheck. This may be more than you can manage at first; choose an amount, therefore, that feels comfortable and pay your savings first. Then, use the deposited money as security for a small loan and pay the loan back on time. Since a credit card is necessary for such things as car rentals and hotel reservations, it may be a good idea to try to get one -- as long as you can control your impulses to spend what you don't have. Try first with a local store and then, after you've established a history of paying your bills on time, apply for one of the major cards. Always, though, stick to your budget, save money regularly and after a few years your credit problems will be behind you.

4. Get professional help. You might want to seek advice from a professional financial planner. A planner can help you organize all the budgetary details and offer objective suggestions on how to cut the fat from your spending. You and your planner may decide that your best option is consolidation of your debts into a single loan. Someone knowledgeable about investments also can help you allocate your savings wisely so you can build back your asset base. That way, you'll have a firm financial foundation and can face the future more confidently.

Planning and discipline are the keys. Have a plan to guide your spending, and then follow it to the letter to help spend your money wisely and save for a more secure financial future.

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The 49ers survived a late rally by the Los Angeles Rams to pull out a come-from-behind 31-27 victory last Sunday at Candlestick Park. The Niners were leading at half time 21-6, but Rams QB Chris Miller teamed up with Flipper Anderson for a 50-yard touchdown bomb in the third quarter to make the game 24-19.

Moments later, Miller came back again to hit another touchdown pass and put the Rams ahead 27-24.

But Steve Young, who had another great day passing, hit Jerry Rice for 18 yards and the game-winning touchdown. Young passed for 325 yards and four touchdowns, which included three to Jerry Rice.

The 49er defense played well in the first half, but fell asleep in the third quarter as Deion Sanders and the secondary were burned a couple of times for long touchdowns.

Next week, the 49ers travel to New Orleans for a Monday night game. San Francisco 28, New Orleans 13.

The Vikings (7-4) and the Eagles (7-4) lost again this week, so the race for the home field advantage will be between the Niners and the Boys. Speaking of the Boys, the Dallas Cowboys continue to have their problems. This week, Troy Aikman suffered a knee injury and backup QB Rodney Peete sprained his thumb on his right hand. The Cowboys were forced to sign Mike Pagel and third string QB Jason Garrett will start on Thanksgiving against the Packers. Green Bay 24, Dallas 17.

How about those Oregon Ducks! They won the Pac 10 conference and will play Penn State in the Rose Bowl. The Ducks haven't played in the Rose Bowl in 37 years!! It will be Penn State's first Rose Bowl appearance.

The Sacramento Kings (4-3) continue to impress their home town fans as they beat the Cavaliers last Sunday 96-88. The Kings are 3-1 at home and will entertain the New Jersey Nets (4-6) on Wednesday and the Denver Nuggets (5-3) on Friday.

Rookie first-round pick Brian Grant has been playing outstanding basketball and is a major reason the Kings are winning. Defense and rebounding are what the Kings needed this year, and Grant and Michael Smith are providing the Kings with great offensive rebounding.

If the Kings beat New Jersey on Wednesday, it will be the first time the Kings were 5-3 since 1982!

Plenty of sports this weekend, so enjoy your dinner and Happy Thanksgiving!!

See ya next week!!

NOTICE:

The Fall leaf season is again upon us. Your cooperation during this period will greatly improve the City's ability to maintain clean streets and storm drains.

The City Street Crew will pick up the leaves and tree limbs that fall directly onto the street. They will NOT pick up leaves, brush, or grass cuttings which have been raked into the street or otherwise removed from a yard or lot and placed into the street. The street sweeper will sweep around any piles found on the street.

Any leaves, grass clippings, brush, tree limbs, and other refuse originating behind the street curb should be placed in garbage cans, bags, or other containers or tied in bundles and placed at the curb for pick-up on refuse day. This service is a part of the regular monthly refuse collection rate, and there is no additional charge. Bundles must not be greater in dimension that 3 feet X 3 feet or weigh more than 40 pounds.

Twice a month street sweeping, in the residential areas of the City, will begin on November 21, 1994 for the leaf season. Once all the leaves have fallen, street sweeping will return to a once a month schedule. The map and schedule for leaf pickup and street sweeping are on the reverse side of this notice. The City has been divided into four (4) areas as shown on the map. The month and days of sweeping and leaf pickup are indicated for each area. Removal of parked vehicles from the street on the days indicated would allow better cleaning.

REMEMBER - refuse originating in your yard is your responsibility. Your cooperation in this matter will allow for cleaner storm drains and safer streets and is greatly appreciated.

News-Ledger Editorial

There really is a lot to be thankful for. . .

There is, indeed, a lot to be thankful for this Thanksgiving.

If you are reading this, your eyes are still working. At least a small part of your brain is still working, too, and you are alive.

As long as you are alive, there are possibilities ahead.

The "big" earthquake (the one that will slide California into the ocean. . .) still hasn't struck, and that's pretty good, unless you own property in Nevada that you hope to someday market as beachfront.

Ollie North didn't get elected to the Senate.

There is only one Newt Gingrich.

The last election may have been the dose of hard reality President Clinton needed.

Haiti is not a disaster. Neither was the Persian Gulf, Round II.

West Sacramento is arguing about two acres in Southport (the proposed Cheaper! store) rather than 674 acres (the Southport Industrial Park).

The Christmas Basket Project is gearing up.

The West Sacramento sewage treatment plant debacle is winding down, however unsatisfyingly.

And so on.

The point is, the glass can be either half full or half empty. Once a year, it's nice to sit back and count your blessings. To look at the glass and see, not only is it not half-empty, but if you tilt it just right, it's more than half full.

Happy Thanksgiving, and may these be the best holidays ever.

Programs for teaching bilingual students at local schools

from the Washington Unified School District

The Academic Excellence Title VII (BICOMP) Program has begun the 1994-95 year with many activities which serve students of the Washington Unified School District. First, because BICOMP was adopted by the Washington Unified Board for the elementary school science curriculum, the curriculum is being introduced to District teachers through a series of professional development events. The first inservice occurred on the September 23rd staff development day and is being followed by science seminars scheduled after school throughout the year. Mary Brewer, Principal of Elkhorn Elementary School, and Lisa Hayes, Teacher at Alyce Norman Elementary School, co-chairs of the District Science Curriculum Committee, and Lorie Hammond, BICOMP Disseminator/Trainer, are working with Dr. Linda MacDonell, Assistant Superintendent, Educational Services, in planning the year long staff development program.

As one of eighteen Academic Excellence Projects in the United States and one of only six to be selected for new three-year term, 1994-97, Washington Unified's Academic Excellence staff were invited to the United States Office of Education OBEMLA (Office of Bilingual Education and Minority Language Affairs) Management Institute in Washington, D.C., October 26 - 29, 1994. BICOMP was represented at the national institute by Dr. Sarah Taylor, Director, Categorical Programs, and Lorie Hammond, Disseminator/Trainer, BICOMP. Through workshops and presentations at this national institute Washington Unified representatives obtained current information on the reauthorization of Title VII and the role of technology in education. Academic Excellence staff were recognized for the exemplary science curriculum, BICOMP, developed by District and UC Davis staff through earlier Title VII support.

Students at Westfield and Elkhorn Schools participated on November 3rd and 4th in a "dia de los muertos" program organized by Lorie Hammond as a support service for the schools' participation as a demonstration site for BICOMP. This traditional fall holiday serves as a curricular spin-off to BICOMP science units on weather, plants, and the human body since "el dia" celebrates the harvest, the change of seasons, and the cycle of life and death. Participating teachers included Nellie Plasencia, Christina Bravo, Paige Cothran, Mike Beus, David Nieves, Alice Peralta, Maria Rosa Serrano, and Socorro Lizarraga.

On November 16th, Sacramento area categorical program directors had an opportunity to learn about BICOMP and watch a demonstration lesson presented by Irene Oropeza-Enriquez at Westfield School. Washington Unified Cabinet and Board members have been invited to attend the demonstration, which features techniques for making challenging curriculum available to multilingual English language learners.

There will be other BICOMP events, demonstrations.

Washington Unified School District is excited and pleased to announce the receipt of notification from the United States Department of Education that the District's Title VII Program of Academic Excellence, BICOMP, will be funded for the three-year term, 1994 - 1997. The Academic Excellence Program provides federal financial assistance for exemplary programs of bilingual education to disseminate effective practices to other schools and districts. BICOMP, one of six programs nationwide selected in this funding cycle, will receive $197,517 for the 1994-95 program.

BICOMP, Bilingual Integrated Curriculum Project, was developed by WUSD and UC Davis staff to teach English to Spanish-speaking elementary students through the content area of science. There are spin-offs from the science lessons into other curricular areas such as literature, math, art, and computer utilization.

The curriculum, originally developed for intermediate students, was later expanded to serve primary students also. BICOMP earned exemplary status from the California Department of Education in 1989 and was awarded one of seven Academic Excellence Program grants in 1991. Lorie Hammond, Academic Excellence Disseminator/Trainer, has been instrumental in maintaining BICOMP demonstration classes at Elkhorn and Westfield Elementary Schools and disseminating the project to districts with similiar student populations within California and the south west.

She has organized two summer science institutes to train teachers in BICOMP concepts; the 1993 institute focused on the river and water cycle, the 1994 institute on geology. The new funding will enable WUSD to expand BICOMP within the District to multilingual classes and to take the program to other districts within the United States which serve LEP students. Lorie Hammond, Academic Excellence Disseminator/Trainer, and Sarah Taylor, Director of Categorical Programs, were the authors of the Academic Excellence proposal.

Letters to the Editor

More on 187

I am compelled to reply to the letter from Ms. Hope Herr in the Ledger on November 16 in which she said that Proposition 187 on the November 8 ballot had awakened a sleeping giant.

Well, she is right, the sleeping giant that has been awakened is called the silent majority who have been pulling the wagon while her cronies (an expression in England or buddies or pals) have been riding in for forty-some years for free. When you awake something that has been sleeping at taxpayers expense it is like stirring up a hive of bees -- you put out a drop of honey and one ant finds it in a matter of hours you have thousands of the little critters all over the place. The same applies to the welfare system we have in California; they come from all directions to get their share of the honey. Ms. Herr says she is ashamed to be a Californian; well, there are many roads out of this state and many other countries she can go to. She may also find one run solely by liberal democrats, where she may be welcome to live off the sweat of the taxpayers and get no lip from the people pulling her weight.

I almost cry when I think about how cruel her friends and neighbors have been to her by trying to dump some of the dead weight they have been carrying for decades. She may also go back to England and wave her ale glass and apologize for coming from a state where the majority of the people have a small say in the way they are governed, so maybe Santa will bring her a crying towel so she can wipe away her crocodile tears. So, Ms. Herr, if you forget to buckle up or jay walk, fail to feed a parking meter or speed, you have broke the law. The same applies to slipping across the border into the U.S.A. I don't think you would expect the taxpayers to pay your fine, or maybe you would? You sound just a smidgen more like Hitler or Hussain than English or American. This welfare mess came 30 years ago called Great Society and War on Poverty by L.B.J. It ran up the national debt $3 trillion or more.

Another view. . .

When I look at the children in my classroom, I do not see citizenship or nationality. I see only children who need an education in order to become productive members of whatever society they choose.

Therefore, if and when the provisions of Prop. 187 are implemented, I will refuse to take any part in questioning or reporting the documentation of any student.

Volunteers

Volunteers truly make the world a better place to be. Because of the volunteers from the West Sacramento Latter Day Saints (LDS) church and the West Sacramento Kiwanis Club, the West Sacramento Senior Center, which serves between 200 and 300 senior citizens daily, has become a "brighter" place. Recently, the LDS church painted the walls in the multi-purpose room and classroom, and the Kiwanis Club painted the ceiling in the multi-purpose room.

On behalf of the West Sacramento Senior Center participants, thanks to all the volunteers involved! What you did was truly appreciated!

"WITHDRAWAL OF CAR LINE SERVICE FROM WEST SACRAMENTO AN ECONOMIC QUESTION"

SO DECLARES GENERAL MANAGER OF SACRAMENTO NORTHERN RAILWAY IN LATE INTERVIEW WITH INDEPENDENT

In the last issue of the Independent the question of the withdrawal of the street car line service from West Sacramento was discussed, but more or less in a perfunctory way, because at the time of issue General Manager J. B. Rowray could not be se seen owing to his absence from town.

Mr. Rowray has given the Independent an interview since that time and now acknowledges that the question of withdrawal is simply an economic one, but not based on any antipathy to the district or a retrenchment of service for the West Sacramento people.

He acknowledges that the petition to the Railroad Commission bears all the facts without prejudice and the withdrawal is simply a retrenchment in order to better the finances of the road.

Mr. Rowray also acknowledges that should better prospects loom up in the future the service will be resumed.

The date for hearing of the petition has not been set by the Railroad Commission and it is a conceded fact there will be considerable opposition to the withdrawal.

Many of the great industries located in West Sacramento were placed there because of the street car service and it is an assured fact these interests will make objection to any change. In factory districts convenience to a labor market is one of the great items. The owners of the great mills in West Sacramento must have a steady supply of labor and without street car service that would be absolutely impossible.

That is one of the reasons that the Virden Packing Plant and Stock Yards cannot be located in the "Pocket" district in Sacramento County because a supply of labor is not convenient in that district.

And a supply of labor in West Sacramento would not be convenient should the street car service to West Sacramento be discontinued by the Sacramento Northern Railroad.

Steps have not yet been taken for a concrete protest against the withdrawal of the car line from West Sacramento, but it is known that some of the factories interested have already sent in their objections and will appear at the hearing when the question comes up for consideration.

Again, the West Sacramento Company, when disposing of lands either for farming or factory purposes, promised that the service would always be available and now that it is endangered the corporation will protest energetically.

Mr. Rowray claims that his corporation is simply waiting for the hearing to be appointed by the Railroad Commission.

FIBRE PRODUCTS FACTORY TO START MANUFACTURING OCTOBER 10TH

The work of completing United States Fibre Products plant in West Sacramento is moving rapidly to a finish.

The first unit is being finished and rice straw will soon be arriving on the ground.

The owners of the factory expect that the work of manufacturing wall board and other products will start on October 10th.

As a matter of fact, the only delay now experienced is the non-arrival of machinery that has been ordered for several months and has either been delayed at the mills or in transit, owing to the shortage of cars.

It is expected that about 65 men will be placed at work when the factory opens and later on when other units are added the full complement of employees will reach three or four hundred.

The work of manufacturing will continue throughout the year, for enough storage space is at hand to take care of all the rice straw of the State.

Peculiar to this factory is the fact that already the output for the first year has been sold by the promoters. The demand is so great that orders coming in will have to be turned down.

The fibre products plant expects that its product will, in time, almost entirely supercede the papier mache industry.

BODY REMAINS UNIDENTIFIED.

The body of an unknown man, probably a Greek or Italian, was found beside the Southern Pacific tracks on this side of the river early Saturday morning by the crew of train No. 45. One leg was severed, while the skull was fractured, causing death. Deputy Coroner Ross Wilson took charge of the case at the request of Constable H. Buckingham and was unable to make any identification. A few matches were all that could be found in the pockets. A black suit of fair material indicated that it had been sold by a tailoring company in Sacramento.

Penniless, the Coroner believes the man, who was small and about 33 years of age, was stealing a ride, and in moving about to jump as the train neared Sacramento, he lost his balance and fell under the wheels.

AUTO FIRE APPARATUS PLANNED FOR WOODLAND

Woodland, Sept. 17.—Motorizing of the Woodland Fire Department is promised by the City Trustees.

Mayor J. D. Musgrove declares that as soon as the new City Hall is completed the voters will be asked for bonds with which to finance motor fire-fighting equipment.

BY-PASS LEVEES WILL BE FACED WITH CONCRETE

The tSate Reclamation Board, at a meeting held last Tuesday, accepted the proposal of the Cotton-MacCauley Company, a San Francisco firm, for the construction of the concrete protection work on the sand portion of the Sacramento by-pass levees located at Bryte's Bend, two miles north of Washington.

The bid of the firm was $46,528.17. This does not include the cement, which will be furnished by the State under separate bidding.

The work consists of surfacing the inside of the levees with a layer of concrete four inches thick, to prevent wash by high water. According to M. P. Dozier, General Manager of the Reclamation Board, the contractors expect to get started on the job within a week or ten days, and will hurry it to completion, as it is the intention of the board to have the work completed before Christmas.

Many men will be required on the job.

The table grape growers and the raisin growers of the State are squealing like young pigs because they can't get sufficient cars to take their products to the market. The cars are being used to transport wine grapes to eastern markets.

It appears at this writing that the table grape growers and the raisin grape growers will be heavy losers.

Doesn't it serve them right?

When prohibition seemed inevitable they wouldn't lend a helping hand to the wine grape grower. They simply backed up prohibition and even voted for prohibition.

SCHOOL OPENING SHOWED WELL FILLED CLASSES

Last Monday when the Washington public school opened its doors after midsummer vacation, 175 youngsters filed to their desks to await instructions.

Many more pupils are expected later on, but are detained temporarily to finish the harvest on the ranches north and south of town.

There are five teachers, showing that the average class room must hold more than 35 children.

With the exception of Miss Helen Holst, the teachers employed last year are at work again.

A TRUE CASE OF SPANISH INFLUENZA

The ravages of Spanish "flu" last winter have become so well known that most people are very cautious now about contagion.

There will not be much need for quarantine for nearly every one now avoids communication.

A well defined case of "flu" confined Miss Lillian Lear to her home during the past ten days, but she has completely recovered.

Her physician took all necessary precautions and pulled her through splendidly. She expects to be at work again in a few days.

RCHS students screen 'Schindler'

By Yolanda Robles
River City High School

UA's Downtown Theatre manager commented on the good behavior of one hundred River City seniors who attended a special screening of Schindler's List at the theater.

Mrs. Carlisle, U.S. history and economics teacher, applied for the special screening through the Governor's office and Speilberg Productions. Mrs. Carlisle decided to apply for the screening after her last year's tenth grade Honors U.S. History class put on a Holocaust Museum.

Before the students left the school, Mr. Engoron, an English teacher, spoke to students about the movie and his connection to the subject. Mr. Engoron said he had seen the movie twice and could not bear to sit through it again. He explained that twenty-eight of his relatives were killed during the Holocaust.

The students were overwhelmed by the powerful movie.

"I thought it was a teary-eyed movie," Daniel Rasher said.

Danielle Gaines said, "I cried through the entire movie."

Schindler's List made the students aware of the suffering that occured during the Holocaust.

Saurabh Sharma said, "It was a good experience because we could see and feel the cruelty of the Nazis to people of other ethnic origins."

Mrs. Carlisle said, "I felt as emotional seeing it the second time."

The students were very appreciative of the screening.

square feet," said Amegin. "Here, we've got 'Cheaper!'. They're very aggressive advertisers, very aggressive marketers. They're going to attract customers from a much wider area."

Amegin criticized the commission for accepting the traffic study, wondering "how, if they did read it, could they not have some of the same questions and concerns."

"There's an alarming tendency for the city council and commissions to accept staff reports at face value," he said.

Any member of the public has 14 days to appeal a commission decision to the city council. Amegin said his group would meet that deadline.

But the appeal may be moot. Two members of the city council can join together to bring an item from a city commission to their own review, and that could happen in this case, said Mayor Cindy Tuttle.

Tuttle said she didn't necessarily oppose the project -- or the planning commission's decision -- but that the council members often feel it's appropriate to participate in the decisions of controversial issues. About a dozen people spoke against the Cheaper! project at last week's planning commission, and over a hundred have signed petitions or written letters against it.

"I don't know if anybody's decided whether they're going to appeal or not," said Tuttle, adding that she had heard that at least one council member was considering doing so. "I don't have a problem in seeing it come to the council."

Tuttle said she had not finished studying the staff report on the proposed store, but did have some concerns. One question was how the store in Southport might change the use of the Jefferson Blvd. bridge during peak traffic hours, when it was most crowded.

Peak hours occur during commute times in the morning and evening. Right now, suggested Tuttle, the evening peak hours might be moderated a little bit by some people choosing to stop in downtown West Sacramento after work to do their grocery shopping. But if some of these people instead become patrons of the Southport store, they might crowd onto the bridge into the Southport at the same time as the rest of the people returning home from work, leading to a bigger lump of people heading into Southport at once.

Tuttle said she wondered if the new traffic study looked at such factors.

Amegin's group, and other, have also criticized the Cheaper! store for being a potential magnet for crime.

"The crime incidents at stores like Raley's and Safeway tend to be shoplifting-type incidents," he said. "The incidents at (the existing Cheaper! stores) at Poplar Ave. and in Woodland tend to felonies. For the size of the stores, the police calls are far more."

Company official Jim Roscoe stressed that new Cheaper! stores are being built to a higher standard and different philosophy than the chain's older, "convenience" stores. He said that the new stores are larger, with more grocery merchandise, and are built to remain a source of pride to the neighborhood.

The planning commission's decision to approve a conditional use permit to the store (which included the right to obtain a liquor license) was unanimous. It's approval of a general plan interpretation concerning the traffic issue was by a 3-2 vote.

The store is to be located on a two-acre parcel near Linden Rd.'s southern intersection with Jefferson Blvd.

Opening lead — queen of diamonds.

Complicated conventions often lead to disastrous partnership misunderstandings, but there is no doubt that now and then they produce sensational results.

For example, take this deal played during the 1981 World Championship in the match between Pakistan and Australia. When Munir Ata-Ullah and Jani Fazli held the North-South cards for Pakistan, the bidding went as shown.

The Pakistani pair were using a system called SAAPP (Stone-Age Acol with Pakistani Pre-empts). The opening three club bid by Fazli was artificial and indicated one of seven different types of hands! The actual nature of the hand would presumably be described later on by the three-club bidder.

Ata-Ullah responded artificially with three hearts, aware that if Fazli's three club bid was based on a long, solid suit, it could not be hearts. Fazli thereupon jumped to four spades, indicating a powerful eight-card spade suit, one ace, and also a void in an unspecified side suit!

Ata-Ullah's five club bid showed first-round control of that suit, and Fazli's five diamond bid identified his void in diamonds. This was all North needed to know, and he jumped to six spades, closing the bidding.

There was nothing to the play. Declarer ruffed the diamond lead, cashed the A-K of trumps and king of clubs, then led a heart, easily making the slam for a score of 1,430 points.

It was a magnificent triumph for the SAAPP convention. The identical deal was played at four other tables, and at each of them the South player opened the bidding with four spades. This was followed by three passes at each table. Perhaps we would all do well to learn SAAPP ASAP!
